CUT IN STONE

MHS spirit, Cavemen pride

True spirit reigned throughout the Mishawaka High School student body during the 1992-93 school year. Old traditions were brought back to life, and students welcomed the change of pace. People often stopped to take notice of the many activities that encouraged students to get involved. With a new principal to present ideas, the student body was more excited about the school year and took the school year more seriously. Our athletic teams performed their tasks with pride, and although the Cavemen didn't always come out on top, our faith in them remained. Mishawaka High School may not be the biggest school in the area, but the fact remains that our traditional values reign because they are Cut in Stone.

THE CORNERSTONE

Cutting Into Student Life

Although our days at MHS were usually hectic and often exhausting, many of us found, or rather made, the time to participate in extracurricular activities. From spirit moving pep assemblies to classically performed plays and musicals, everyone showed their devotion by sharing in the traditions at MHS. Students' motivation and dedication were shown throughout the year by participating in the many events offered to the student body. The administration gave us incentives to improve overall grades and to lift school spirit within our mighty halls. Many of us found that if we just couldn't cut it, our friends and our teachers were there to lend a helping hand. Each memorable event featured here in the Student Life Section will be remembered because each one became a Cornerstone in our lives based on the 1992-93 school year.

Parade

Bringing back tradition

Homecoming 1992 brought a new twist to traditional Homecoming festivities. The once traditional Homecoming parade was brought back in hopes of uniting MHS and the community.

Mr. Trimboli felt a need to ignite school spirit and worked diligently to bring back the parade. The parade included forty-six units representing the various sports, clubs, and student organizations. The student body was very excited about something new.

The parade was routed west on Lincoln Way, north up Main St., east on Mishawaka Ave., and south down Studebaker St. Many citizens gathered along the parade route to support MHS.

The students were shocked at the overwhelming turn-out. Aaron Fowler, a member of the Homecoming court, commented, "I really didn't think the parade would be very big, but there were tons of people watching."

Homecoming

Moments to remember

Homecoming '92 was much more than just a game against our arch rival the Penn Kingsmen. Homecoming brought Spirit Week, a parade, class floats, and the long awaited first pep assembly of the 1992-93 school year.

From Nerd Day to Farmer Day, school spirit ran high within MHS. The activities started on Monday with the beginning of Spirit Week and ended on Friday with a dance held in the east gym sponsored by the Student Council.

And who could forget the game? The first half ended with a 21-0 lead in favor of the Kingsmen; but as the half-time festivities began, the enthusiasm of the fans rose as the 1992 Homecoming court was introduced.

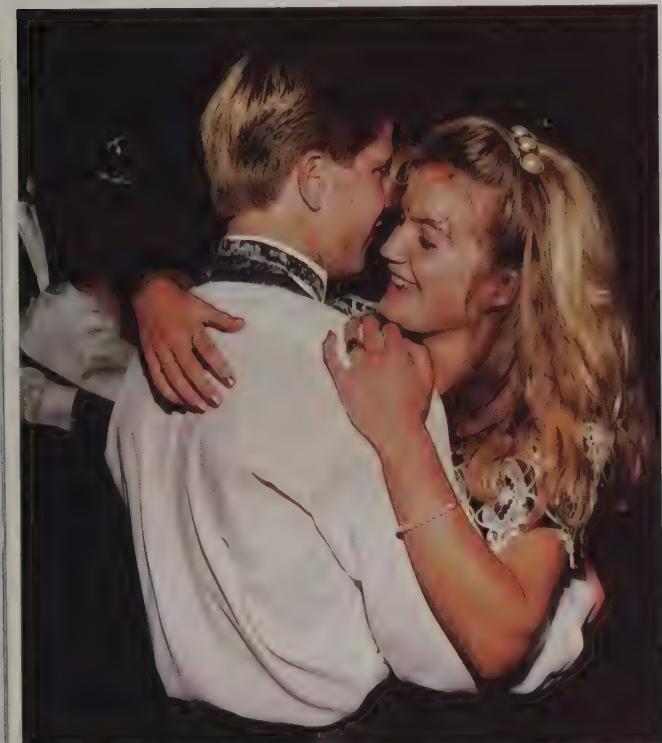

At last it was time for the crowning. As a hush fell over the stadium, and the crowd waited in anticipation, Student Council President Jenny Reinoehl crowned the 1992 Homecoming Queen.....Amy Roberts. Trisha Karnes

Powder-puff

Senior Power

Although our Cave-men football team took the spotlight by going 7-4, another group of gridiron maulers were playing hard. The girls of Mishawaka suited up for the annual Powder Puff game. Teams started practicing about three weeks before the actual game. The veteran seniors refined their attack from the past years and were in top form. Amy Hower commented, "We were so close in the years past to winning it all, but we always came up short.

Winning the championship our senior year made it more memorable." Players had to be taught the basics of football along with intricate offensive and defensive schemes. Although it was a flag football game, many of the girls got rough and tough. The intensity could be seen from the stands. Coaches Cory Betzer and Chad Harper led their seniors to the championship game against the sophomores. After a grueling 20 minutes, the seniors were #1. J. Mazurkiewicz

Pep sessions

Motivation

The ancient and honored tradition of the pep assembly once again stirred through the halls of Mishawaka High. Although the state did not allow "pep assemblies," Mishawaka still managed to have its share of "environmental symposiums." The first symposium took place on the day of the Homecoming game. Once again, the world famous emcee, Mr. Chamberlin, did his special skit and impressions for the students. His identity was Peter Pinkleton of Penn High.

Mr. Trimboli hosted this event and fired up the student body for the big game. Our second big assembly was for girls volleyball state finals. Some mock stars of the opposing teams also made an appearance. The girls were ready for their trip down state. Amy Wojciechowski felt, "The timing was perfect because we left for Indy right after the assembly." The environmental symposiums of 1992 lived up to the standards of former MHS assemblies. J. Drama

Acting the Part

This year the drama department presented a classical children's play, Charlotte's Web. On October 1 and 2 at 12:30 P.M. elementary school students filled the auditorium for a presentation of the play. On October 3 at 7:30 P.M., the MHS Drama Department performed Charlotte's Web to the students and faculty of Mishawaka and to the public. The play was for the hearts of both the young and the old. Costs for the play were $2.00 for students and $4.00 for adults.

The midplay was presented on November 19, 20, and 21 at 7:30 P.M. The drama department presented Stage Door and it was directed by Mrs. Jan Jagerman. The play was about a girl from Indiana who travels to New York with a group of girls to become an actress. The star Terry Randall, played by Pamm Kraegal, becomes a star. There were over 30 cast members in both plays performed by the drama department.

Spirit

Just for fun

The year was full of school spirit and pride. During two special weeks that spirit was intensified. The first Spirit Week was before Girls' Homecoming and the second was before Guys' Homecoming. Some of the favorite days included Nerd Day, Farmer Day, and Twin Day. Students of all ages, shapes, and sizes got dressed up in their most elaborate outfits to show their spirit. Nathan Barcus said, "Spirit Week gave students a chance to show how crazy they were."

Spirit Week built anticipation for the big games and for the Homecoming ceremonies at the end of the week. The first Spirit Week was also capped off by the parade. The amazing thing was the teachers who also participated in Spirit Week activities. Some of the best outfits were seen on these spirited teachers. No matter who was got involved in Spirit Week, it was a time of enthusiasm, excitement, and school pride.

Guys

Male Appeal

The week began on Tuesday with Favorite Team Day, the first day of Spirit Week. By the end of the week everyone was psyched up for the Homecoming game against Elkhart Memorial on Friday. The Court had been nominated and the escorts chosen. Everyone was eagerly awaiting Friday night and the announcement of who was to be crowned king. As the court was escorted onto the floor, the anticipation rose as Jenny Reinoehl stepped forward to crown the king.

Matt Mammolenti stood in amazement as the crown was placed upon his head. This would be a night that he would never forget. Matt and Homecoming Queen Amy Roberts were seated in the middle of the basketball court for all to admire as everyone applauded the couple.

As the court was escorted off the floor, it could be seen that there were no hard feelings, just pure happiness of having one night in the spotlight.

Intramural Ace in Your Face

Mishawaka was a name recognized across the state for many reasons. One was the continuing success of our volleyball team. The volleyball program at Mishawaka was excellent; however, it was for girls only. That was when the school sponsored intramural volleyball. It was a chance for the male population of MHS to participate in the sport. Teams consisted of girls, guys, and faculty members from Mishawaka, Beiger, and John Young junior highs.

Play began February 17 and continued every Wednesday for a total of seven games each. "Who Are We," a team of senior students, was undefeated in the regular season. The tournament was on March 24 and 31. Teams were seeded according to records and play began. "Who Are We" continued their dominance by rallying against Team Molnar. After losing 15-11, they came back and won the next two games 15-13, 15-10 to win the championship. J. Mazurkiewicz

Spring break

Break Away

With a little more than one month to go until summer vacation, a long awaited break arrived. The first week in April, the annual Spring Break, had come. When senioritis set in and underclassmen got anxious for the next year, a well deserved vacation split up the remainder of the year. The most popular thing to do for break was to head south, usually to Florida. Those who could not make it to the sunshine state found other ways to occupy their time.

Some students had sports games and practices, some went to Chicago or Indianapolis. Break also served as an excellent time for seniors to visit colleges. Chris Delinski mentioned, "I visited I.U. Bloomington for the first time and decided that is where I would study for the next four years." Mainly Spring Break was the time to sleep in, lay around the house, play golf, and stay out all night long. However vacation was spent, it was an enjoyable one.

Musical Voices of Experience

The 1993 spring musical Pajama Game was performed in the MHS auditorium on three consecutive nights beginning on Thursday, March 18 and continuing through Saturday, March 20. A two act musical, directed by Mrs. Jan Jagerman, Pajama Game was a delightful production containing symbolism, satire and humor which are characteristics of a good showpiece. Based on the novel 7 1/2 Cents by Richard Bissell, Pajama Game was a great success.

Pajama Game was a play about workers at a pajama factory who wanted a seven and a half cent raise intertwined with a romance between Sid (Ken Groen, 95) and Babe (Brandy Hayne, 95). The play began with an introduction given by Hines (Jeff Sabbe, 94) who explained the symbolism that would be seen throughout the play.

The play ended on a happy note: the workers received their raise and everyone partied in their pajamas. Trisha Karnes

Prom

In the Still of the Night

This year's junior/senior prom was held on May 7, 1993, at Union Station in downtown South Bend. As the night began, couples were graced with warm weather and sunny skies. Many couples took advantage of the pleasant weather and got their pictures taken at Shiojiri Garden on Mishawaka Avenue. After surviving getting hundreds of pictures taken by parents, couples made their way to a restaurant in which they would enjoy a wonderful meal.

After dinner some couples chose to walk along the East Race while others opted to go straight to the prom.

As couples entered Union Station, their names were grandly announced by Mr. Chamberlin as they stepped into the elegantly decorated hall.

As the clock struck 10 o'clock, Junior Seth Easterday announced that Seniors Vince Gresham and Amy Roberts were voted as the 1993 prom king and queen. Trisha Karnes

Graduation

A Final Moment

The wait and anticipation was over. The moment of truth and recognition was before their eyes. As juniors Carrie Stone and Sara Unrue led the seniors onto the field on Sunday, June 6th, the 116th Commencement was about to begin.

Earlier in the year it was revealed that due to a Supreme Court ruling, there was to be no prayer at commencement. Because of this, seniors decided to restart the tradition of the Baccalaureate service.

Held before commencement, the service was completely organized by students. It included a slide show, performances by the choir and orchestra and special solos given by seniors. Due to the support from students, families and the community, the class of 1993 will not be remembered as the first class to omit prayer from commencement, but as the class who restarted the Baccalaureate.

A STEPPING STONE

Striding through academic success

Even though many students believed that the reason they went to school was to see their friends, the true reason was to get an education to prepare them for life after high school. The atmosphere at MHS was a key factor in instilling success in students. No matter what path students chose to follow, one common goal united them together- a drive to succeed academically.

Striving towards these goals was encouraged by the administration, the faculty, and even by the students themselves. The faculty pushed students, but they never lost the compassion and understanding that encouraged students even more.

Students provided inspiration for one another, took pride in their school, their studies, and themselves. That was the secret behind each step they took.

ENGLISH

English to most students was just book reports, essays, and vocabulary tests. But some English classes were far more than that. One class taken by many students was drama. This English class, which taught the art of acting, broke away from the ordinary routine of classes. Students got to perform on stage as well as learn about the theatre throughout the century. Students received more than just book learning. They obtained actual experience in acting.

Another English class that broke away from the norm was speech. This class allowed students to get out of their seats and speak in front of the class. Speech allowed the routine oral reports seem fun and exciting. Students enjoyed many fun and informative speeches straight from their classmates. In the end the oral speeches were not so scary after all.

Cracking a smile! Troy Gibson (94) stands up to perform his speech. Students usually became nervous when their turn was called, but when they got up there, it became easier.

Other electives were the special reading and writing English classes for seniors. Students read and discussed great works of literature. After taking classes at M.H.S. students were prepared for any situation. Amy Grauel

TRYOUTS

Before every great performance on stage, actors had to go through a period called trying-out. The actors went to an audition, acted out a specific part for the director, and then waited for the phone call telling them whether or not they got the part. One common form of auditions was open auditions. That allowed anyone to watch as the actors tried out for the parts. The other form was closed auditions, where only the directors would see the performance. Kerri Groen (93) said, "I am glad that they went back to open auditions, because it better displayed a person's acting ability in front of people." No matter what form of audition was used, the experience was still a nervous yet exciting time for all who tried out.

COULD IT BE DOWN HERE? Steve Gamble stoops to check out the bottom row of books. Book reports sent many students to the school library searching for books to fit their assignments. Seniors and juniors spent a lot of time in the library.

QUICK THINKING! Jerry Stewart checks out the card file to search for his books. Smart students went straight to the file, rather than straight to the shelves, to look for their research topic. The books were not always there, however, because many students did their research papers at the same time. Photo by Cindy Rush.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE

"I took a foreign language so I could learn a new culture and speak a new language," stated Nikki Cruise (94). Students took foreign classes for various reasons, but all students had a good time while learning the new language.

In German classes students read stories like the "Die Rote Katze" and traditional German fairy tales. Third and fourth year students performed the plays "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" and "Little Red Riding Hood."

G.A.P.P.

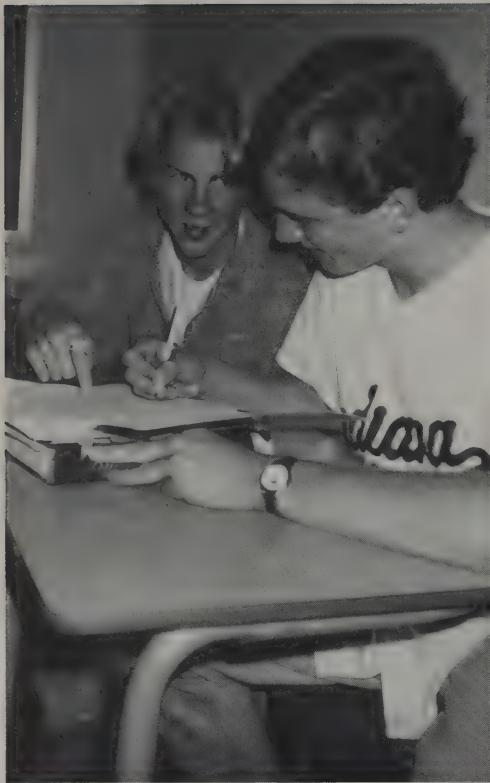

G.A.P.P. means German American Partnership Program. This is the second year Mishawaka has participated in the G.A.P.P. program. Fifteen students and their teacher Angelika Taurig-Meisner from the Bismarkschule in Elmshorn, Germany, stayed in Mishawaka from October 2nd thru the 30th. During their stay the German students attended Mishawaka for twelve days and local elementary and middle schools for one day. In June of 1993 fifteen Mishawaka students traveled to Elmshorn to stay with their partner's families for a month. "It allowed people to go to Germany for a longer period of time and live with the German family. Most students will not stay for a whole year," said Mr. Frazier about the advantages of this program. Above Andreas Muller and Jan Jungling, two students from Elmshorn, pose for a picture in a social studies class.

Mmm, Mmm, GOOD! Akiko Goto, the Japanese teaching assistant, tests an American cookie.

SOCIAL STUDIES

The 1992-1993 school year brought many exciting and new events to the Social Studies Department.

The new Democratic administration affected every course. How would the new president arrange his financial plan? How would he conduct foreign relations? Fortunately, the MHS social studies teachers were well informed and could answer everyone's questions.

U.S. history was a required course for juniors. Students liked it because it was an in-depth look at how our country has grown into what it is today. Carrie

Stebbins (94) said, "U.S. history was one of my favorite classes because we spent a lot of time on more recent events like the Korean War and the Bay of Pigs invasion."

Government was a required class for seniors. In Mr. Niemann's government class students had to make up a government for an imaginary country called Verklin.

Psychology and sociology were courses that offered a basic understanding of the mind and how society worked.

The Social Studies Department offered something for everyone, and everyone took advantage of the opportunities. Melissa Sereno

HISTORY DAY

History Day was a yearly nationwide competition. A topic was chosen every year and students built their projects around it. Every winner from the state competitions went to Washington to compete in the nationals for scholarships and money prizes. This year's contest was held on March 13. The topic was communications and history in relation to the U.S. Shannon Thompson (94) has participated in History Day for three years. She did her project on the early trials of freedom of the press. It included pictures and a paper explaining her project. MATHEMATICS

One of the most important subjects for any student to know was math. Almost every action in the world involved some form of math. The math classes at M. H. S. were perfect for preparing students for the mathematical world ahead.

M.H.S. offered a wide variety of math classes. Beginner classes were offered for those students who needed a little more help with math. Pre-algebra and Algebra I and II were taken by most freshmen as a start to the wonderful world of math. Sophomores and juniors took geometry and Algebra III and IV, and most seniors took pre-calculus or calculus. Of course, there were exceptions to the normal routine of math classes. Those students who were gifted in math skills tended to take more advanced classes than the general or advanced level of math. Freshmen focus classes were Algebra I and II, as well as trigonometry. There was a perfect math class available for any skill level. Students who took math seriously and did their work found that M.H.S. prepared them well for the world that awaited them. Amy Grauel

Tech Prep

Tech Prep taught students the necessary skills for job training. Tech Prep classes dealt with all fields of interest. Business classes trained students for actual careers in the business field. Medical tech prep classes taught students actual hands-on training for the medical field, such as taking temperatures, blood pressure, or helping someone into a wheelchair. This prepared students for a job, a two year program, or even a four year program. Chemistry tech prep classes trained students interested in the medical or chemical fields. Tech prep classes worked together to reach the goal of actually preparing students with the needed skills of a career or secondary schooling.

SCIENCE

This year in science many exciting events took place. Fun projects and labs kept things interesting throughout the year.

The Science Department offered many types of classes. It was made up of biology, chemistry, earth science, physiology, physical science, and physics. When asked which was her favorite science class, Stephanie Fagan (95) replied, "Earth science because Miss Nash made it fun, and I enjoyed learning different things about the earth."

Physiology, one of the newer classes at MHS, was part of Tech Prep. In physiology students dissected cats to learn the muscle structure. "Physiology was a very interesting class. It took work, but I learned a lot," replied Carrie Stebbins (94) when asked what her feelings about physiology were.

The most popular science class was biology. The second year advanced students completed research projects with topics ranging from plant growth to animal training. Put it all together, and it added up to a busy year! Melissa Sereno

COOPERATIVE LEARNING

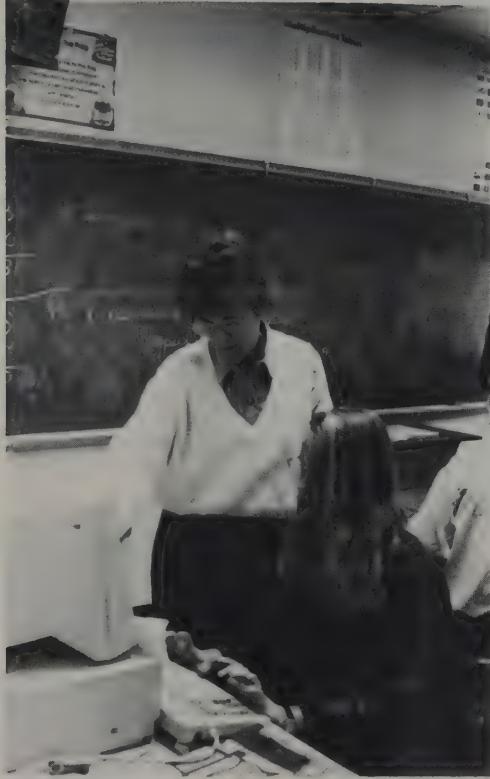

Ever hear the saying two heads work better than one? Working with someone else made even the toughest assignments seem fun. Often times when you didn't know the answer to a question, your partner did. Becky Priddy (94) said, "My friend Julie and I worked together on our U.S. History. It took us less time, and it was more fun." If one person in the group didn't understand a question, then they had plenty of help from the other group members. The group method was used in many classes. In mass media they got into groups and made up commercials, and in English classes students got into groups and discussed literature stories. Working in groups gave students many different perspectives on the same problem. Now, if only we could use partners on those tests! Above: Joe Sweazy (94) and Jeff Sabbe (94)

BUSINESS

Busy, busy, busy described how things went this year in the Business Department at MHS. Fingers could be heard tapping on the keyboards all through the halls.

The Business Department offered keyboarding and word processing for those who wanted to sharpen their typing skills, computer applications for those who wanted to learn valuable computer programs, and marketing and accounting for those who wanted to learn the financial market.

ALWAYS THERE TO LEND TO A HAND Mrs. Benko explains an accounting problem to Jacqueline Siderits (93). Many seniors were enrolled in accounting class for the semester opposite government.

Alex Baiz (93) said, "I took accounting because I want to be an accountant, and I wanted to see what it was about. Now I'm sure it's what I want to do. Accounting class really helped me decide," when asked why he took accounting.

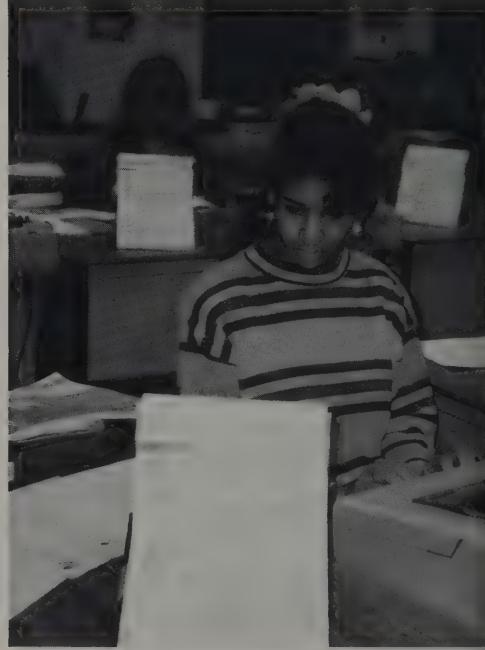

Computer applications students worked with IBM computers. Students learned programs like databases, spreadsheets, and desktop publishing. Approximately five to six weeks were spent on each unit.

Business classes were a great way to get experience for business related jobs and also a fun way to learn.

JOBs

Many students at Mishawaka High School had part-time jobs. Part-time jobs were a great way for kids to earn extra money. However, they were a lot of work. Students had a wide variety of jobs from fast food to working in banks. Brian Hershberger (93) worked at Society Bank. "I really enjoyed my job. It wasn't like a regular part-time job. I worked every day and sometimes the hours got pretty late, but all the hard work was worth it when I saw my paycheck!" Marc Bonadies (93) worked at Dairy Queen. "I liked my job because it was fast paced, and a lot of my friends worked there." Part-time jobs were hard, rewarding, and fun no matter where you worked. Above: Brian Hershberger (93)

HEALTH

Home ec, health, and physical education classes all taught students important lessons for their future.

Physical education taught students important lessons in how to take care of their bodies. Weight lifting, aerobics, basketball, tennis, volleyball, swimming, and golfing were just a few of the activities that P.E. offered.

In health classes students learned how to save lives by using CPR, the Heimlich maneuver, and basic first aid. They studied the harms of drugs, alcohol, and smoking. In Health II, students were required to teach the class for a day over a topic.

Home ec classes cooked tasty dishes such as brownies and cookies. Students not only cooked, but they also had to clean up their messes and do the dishes.

Family living classes taught the development of the fetus and the child. Students participated in a mock wedding which was an example of how to operate in the real world. It taught how to plan a budget and what students should do for their own wedding in the future.

Health classes were only one semester long and concepts had to be taught in a short amount of time.

CHILD CARE

In 1993 Mishawaka High School became kiddie land for the area children in Nancy Smith's child care classes. Children ages three, four, and five years old were able to participate. This program ran for nine weeks from Tuesday, March 16, until Tuesday, May 18. Students led different play school activities which included free play, stories, games, music, crafts and snacks. Play school classes were offered in four sessions. Session one began at 8:30 a.m. and session four ended at 12:20 p.m. The parents had to provide transportation for their children. Dawn Gales said as she posed with her three year old neighbor Brooke Taylor, "I participated in child care class because I enjoyed working with children." This program has been a part of the curriculum for 17 years.

THE BLUSHING BRIDE Kim Nemeti (95) was escorted by Jason Sherrill (94) down the aisle in the mock wedding for family living class. The wedding included a pastor, singers, and bridesmaids. PUBLICATIONS

One very important aspect of Mishawaka High School was the production of the Miskodeed and the Alltold. The Alltold reported the weekly events and local trends. The Miskodeed staff worked all year long preparing a book that would be a memory tool for all students and faculty for years to come. Brooke Chodzinski (96), a member of the Miskodeed staff, stated, "I thought it would be hard, because I was one of only three freshmen on staff, but it was fun, and I am looking forward to next year!"

The classes allowed students to get deeply involved with their publication. David Hutson (93), a member of the Alltold staff, said the work was hard but he was happy to do it. The environment was great as Suzanne Siatkowski (94) stated, "This year was my first year on staff, but they let me fit right in, and I enjoyed taking pictures and meeting new people." These classes gave students opportunities that no other classes could offer. Amy Grauel

THAT LOOKS GREAT! Patty Shallenberger smiles happily at her accomplishment on the computer. The Alltold spent many hours on the computer preparing the paper.

Along with helping the other staff members, she also did the opening, closing, and divider pages of the yearbook. Photo by Suzanne Siatkowski.

DESKTOP

The newest addition to publications was a program called Desktop Publishing. This new program allowed an entire page to be done on a computer. The time for production was drastically cut. The constant work of hand-drawing layouts for the yearbook was eliminated by this program. Another advantage was stated by Amy Hower (93), "It made things easier because you could see the entire page before sending it in." Being able to see the entire page made finding and correcting errors easier. Both the Miskodeed and the Alltold staffs used this new program to make their tasks easier. But, while many staff members used this program, some still stayed to the traditional old way of work - work that would have been much simpler with the new program. Above: Derek Taylor works on the ad section using Desktop.

I. A. AND B. T. H.

In industrial arts classes, auto shop, and building trades classes students learned how to use their talents to make things such as tables, cabinets, and houses. These classes gave students a chance to build their skills.

In industrial arts and woodworking classes students made paper towels and napkin holders, bookcases, plant stands, gun cabinets, cedar chests, and vanities. They used tools such as bansaws, drills, and routers. The machines were dangerous so students had to wear protective goggles at all times.

In auto shop students learned how to become mechanics. They learned how to do everything from changing oil to rebuilding carburetors. Students had to take apart a one cylinder motor then reconstruct it for a grade. Members of the community could bring their cars in to be fixed by the class.

Students could also take auto cad or print shop. In auto cad students used a computer to draft their class projects. The computer made the drawings three dimensional. In print shop students made business cards and memo pads. Dawn Maassel

B.T.H. HOUSE

This year the building trades class built their house in Reverewood. The students in this class had to meet at school at 8:15 then travel to the house at 8:45 and work until 11:10. They made it back to school in time for lunch and then followed a regular schedule for the rest of the day. This class was only offered to juniors and seniors, and they received three credits. Students did all the labor themselves without much outside help. The teacher who was in charge of this huge task was Mr. Chimel. The class and Mr. Chimel learned a great deal from this experience.

ORCHESTRA and BAND

The MHS band and orchestra kept everyone humming. The band marched during football season and helped cheer their team to victory.

After football season the band split up into two groups - Symphonic Band and Concert Band for the season. The orchestra performed many times throughout the year. They participated in solo and ensemble contests. The winners had a chance to compete in the state competition in Indianapolis. For a day during the year the orchestra went on a "tour" of the elementary schools. They played "mini concerts" in the hopes of recruiting new members.

For one day during the year the orchestra and band combined with the choir for one grand performance called May Fest which was eagerly awaited every year.

A typical year in band or orchestra consisted of concerts, competitions, and hard work, in addition to a lot of fun. Melissa Sereno

CHOIR

Singing and dancing was what the students in the Mishawaka high school choirs had talent for. A'capella, swing choir, and madrigal choirs all displayed a great amount of talent.

The A'capella choir sang songs such as "Cole Porter," Bach, and some fifteenth century music. They performed at Vespers and presented a Christmas program for students and the community.

Swing choir performed such songs as "Rhapsody in Rhythm," "Leader of the Band," "Rhythm of Life," and the "Addams Family." Students in swing choir not only had to be talented in music but also in dancing. Swing choir performed at the Guys' Homecoming game.

Madrigals was a singing group that performed special concerts during the Christmas season. The songs they sang were old Christmas songs. They also had a concert and dinner at Knollwood Country Club. Courtney Elmerick (93), a member of a three choirs said, "I enjoy singing and dancing and I met almost all of my friends in choir." Choir classes allowed students to expand their talents. Dawn Maassel

MUSIC FESTIVALS

Music festivals and competitions are a very important part of the music department. Madrigals received a first place at the district competition at Elkhart Central. They also received a first place at the state competition at North Central High School in Indianapolis. Madrigals also travelled to elementary schools to perform. Swing Choir performed at area nursing homes and at junior high schools. Swing choir also travelled to Penn and watched the Penn swing choir, the Goshen swing choir, and the Singing Hoosiers from Indiana University perform. The Mishawaka swing choir's performance was then critiqued by the Singing Hoosiers. All these performances gave students an opportunity to display their talents to the public. ART & PHOTOGRAPHY

Every talent and interest was accented by art classes. The choice of classes from design, advanced drawing and painting, to photography classes fit any student's skills. Design class dealt with the elements of design, shapes, space, and lines. Some projects in design were a realistic pencil drawing, an abstract pen drawing, and a watercolor picture. Advanced drawing and painting students entered different contests for some projects.

ism focused on a different aspect of art. Photography taught students to use the camera in an artistic way. Photo-journalism taught the students about photography as well as journalism. Students watched movies and did written and oral reports on famous photographers and great journalists. Photo-journalism students also learned how to take pictures, as well as develop them. Students took many pictures for the yearbook. Art classes were a great experience to enhance any student's talent. Amy Grauel SMOOTHING IT OUT! Bobby Rail touches up his clay sculpture of a head. Working with clay was a part of regular assignments, as well as for extra credit projects by students. Many different molds were available to create new clay sculptures. Students were able to get creative with actual working clay.

ART CONTESTS

Art students enjoyed the opportunity to enter and possibly win contests. Students from advanced drawing and painting classes enjoyed this experience of competition. Most contests offered prizes of savings bonds, trips, or cash prizes to the winners. One contest the classes participated in this year was the VFW art contest. The theme of the contest was patriotic art. Students could draw, paint, or design any type of art project that fit the topic. The prize for that contest was a fifty dollar savings bond. Contests were usually open to the entire state of Indiana.

ACADEMIC TEAMS

Academic team members at Mishawaka High School displayed their knowledge to area schools at their many competitions. The science and fine art teams competed in eleven competitions. The interdisciplinary and quiz bowl teams had twelve competitions and so did the quiz bowl team. Chris Hoogland (93), the co-captain of the Quiz Bowl team and also a member of the Super Bowl team, said, "The reason I joined these teams was because I love to compete, and these teams gave me an opportunity to compete academically."

BLACK HISTORY

The Super Bowl theme has varied a great deal over the years. In 90-91 the theme was "The Renaissance" and, in 91-92 the theme was "The Age of Discovery." This year the theme was "Black History." A committee meets every spring in Indianapolis to discuss and decide on the theme. Indiana is the only state with The Super Bowl. Mrs. Borr was one of the many teachers who first advocated the idea. The committee decided on the theme in spring; that way students could study and research the topic over summer break. David Bottorff, Chris Hoogland, Matt Dorbin, and Brett Reasor were the only four all around team members. They had to know the history of African Americans from 450 A.D. to the present. All members of the team found this subject extremely fascinating. Pictured above is David Bottorff.

VOLUNTEERING

In a world where crime and cruelty dominated our news, it was nice to hear of a little human compassion. This year several clubs did an outstanding job to make the world a happier place.

This year the students participated in the annual food drive for the needy families of Mishawaka. Students worked for three weeks to collect money, food, and presents to give the needy families of this area a better Christmas.

S.A.D.D. attended many meetings to discuss ways to inform and encourage students to live a safe life, especially during prom and graduation time. S.A.D.D. offered a small jewelry box to any student who signed a contract stating that they would not drink and drive during prom and graduation time.

Caveman care spent time discussing the problems of teens. They used their knowledge of teen problems to help students through rough times. They went out of their way to help the students of M.H.S.

This year the school and the students lived in harmony and peace. Students helped each other as well as other people have a happier life.

DIGGING AROUND Chris Delinski looks for the family number on the boxes before loading them onto the truck. All the boxes for each family had to be found so that no presents would be left behind. This year the families had many boxes filled with gifts for the family members to open on Christmas.

FOOD DRIVE

The Christmas spirit was alive this year with the help and caring of Mishawaka High School. This year the annual food drive did better than the year before collecting money, food, and presents for needy families in the area. The food drive was a three week long effort to make Christmas happier for everyone. Students all throughout the school donated toys, clothes, money, and food for their classroom's family. Then the boxes were taken to the loading dock to be prepared for delivery. The student volunteers worked from five in the morning until almost four in the afternoon to buy perishable groceries and deliver the food to almost 300 families.

HONORARIES

The students in National Honor Society, Project Teach, and Music Honor Society all achieved acknowledgment for their academic and music excellence. To stay in these elite groups students had to do special projects and maintain a certain grade point average.

Students in National Honor Society had to maintain a 3.2 grade point average and had to do a service project. One example of an individual service project was helping out a local church nursery. National Honor Society had a breakfast and a picnic. This year 33 junior members and six senior members were inducted.

Project Teach members traveled to a local school to help teach either an elementary or junior high class. They did one job shadow each semester and a service project. Many members helped a teacher do a bulletin board or took attendance for them. Members planned to become teachers and this group gave them an opportunity for hands on experience.

Music Honor Society members had to go through intense tryout sessions before they were inducted

INDUCTIONS

On Wednesday, January 20th, 1993, at 7:00 p.m. the juniors and seniors with academic excellence were admitted to the most elite society, the National Honor Society. The speakers at the inductions were Stephanie Vinson, Brian Long, Anita Chaudhari, and Rich Fowler- all senior National Honor Society members. The students who were admitted were expected to follow the code of leadership, service, character, and scholarship. At the inductions each expectation was represented by a candle, and each was lighted with the candle of knowledge. After the candles were lit, and the speeches, the juniors were called up one by one onto the stage to sign in. They had punch and cookies after the inductions. Pictured above is Laura Cohen as she signs in.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The beginning of each school year renewed the tradition of electing the year's Student Council representatives. Student's in each sponsor room nominated a person to represent their class.

Near the end of the year students ran for the offices of Student Council. Students had to be able to hold a 2.0 grade average in order to run. The candidates made posters and hung them throughout the school. They also made speeches during the announcements. When election day finally came, the janitors pulled out the old voting machine, and the students filed down to the old gym to place their vote.

This year's Student Council had sixty-three members and four officers. Jenny Reinoehl (93) was president, Tom Willamowski (93) was vice-president, Trisha Karnes (93) was secretary, and Mark Fackson (93) was treasurer.

Student Council coordinated many events and activities such as spirit week, the heart to heart survey, and Guys' Homecoming.

The Student Council did a great job coordinating the fun events that students looked forward to every year.

A CUT ABOVE THE REST

Cutting Into The Future

What made seniors a cut above the rest? To some seniors it was their stunning good looks and charming personalities. To others it was their unsurpassable performances above and beyond the call of duty in their athletic and academic endeavors. For whatever reason, the seniors always outshined the rest. Then came the end of the high school road for the Senior Class, graduation. Now it was time for the seniors to gather their knowledge and experiences and prepare for their futures. The seniors were about to embark on new journeys to college, into the job market, or to the armed forces. Wherever their futures led them, the seniors would always hold dear the wonderful friends and fond memories of their high school years. So when asked, "Who's a cut above the rest?," the seniors responded, "Who else, but the class of 93!"

SENIORS

The most embarrassing thing that happened to me at high school was...

When I came to school without any clothes on (just kidding).

Darren Acrey

When Ms. Nash yelled at me in front of the class about kissing in the hall. She made me read part of the MI-HI Guide outloud.

Amy Roberts

When I tripped going up the stairs, starting a domino effect which knocked everybody else down behind me.

Penny Hagerty

When Mrs. Nelson made me call my mom from class because I forgot my book. Everyone could hear my mom yelling at me through the phone.

Jay Roark

When I went through the whole day of school with my zipper down.

Alicia Bridges

When I was running through the hoop before a basketball game and fell.

Miss You

*Miss you, miss you, miss you;
Everything I do
Echoes with the laughter
And the voice of you.
You're on every corner,
Every turn and twist,
Every old familiar spot
Whispers how you're missed.*

*Miss you, miss you, miss you!
Everywhere I go
There are poignant memories
Dancing in a row.
Silhouette and shadow
Of your form and face,
Substance and reality
Everywhere displace.*

*Miss you, miss you, miss you!
Nothing now seems true
Only that one day
We'll be in heaven with you.*

I WANT TO BE...

GOOD-BYE

*The years have passed by,
And the days have come and gone.
It seemed in the beginning,
High school would last too long.*

*But here we are today,
As the memories sink in,
Turning back the time
Is how we shall begin...*

*Freshman year began
In the fall of '89.
Looking back upon that year,
We slip farther back in time.*

*Remembering the football games
And cheering on our team.
Freshman year was the beginning
Of all our high school dreams.*

*Sophomore year took place
In '90 and '91.
Moving on to better things,
Our year had just begun.*

*The friendships grew together,
And each day meant even more.
Taking only slow steps forward
To open our future doors.*

*Junior year in '91 and '92
Gave many a chance to change,
As we all began to see
That not all things stay the same.*

*Many goals were reached that year
As time began to slip away.
Some let go of the loves they had
And moved on with each new day.*

*Our friends had started to move on
And plan for the lives they led.
No more grasping on for security
For it was time to move ahead.*

*Summers passed us by
With fun times in between,
But this was the final summer
When our hopes turned into dreams.*

*The day had finally arrived
When we were the SENIORS!
Time to put those words to action,
And wake up the fantasy dreamers.*

*This is our year to treasure,
And the time that pulls us through.
Making the best of choices
Is the only thing to do.*

*For the past will always be there,
Yes, the good times and the bad,
And our present time allows us
To look at all the things we had.*

*But the future is unexpected,
And the light will lead the way,
For the countdown has been started
To our graduation day.*

*Let's give this year our hopes and wishes
For it is us who will make them come true,
Because after the year is over
We'll have something new.*

*And when we remember the times that brought us here
Some may begin to cry,
For it's only a matter of months from now
When we will say good-bye.*

*But our futures will be bright enough,
And everyone will see,
That we were here to make a difference
As the class of '93!*

SENIORS SAY

TO CUT ANOTHER PATH

Cutting Into The Future

In 1993 the underclassmen took important steps to secure their future. New classes and exciting opportunities were waiting to be explored. The underclassmen cut new paths and were able to experience many aspects of Cavemen life.

Freshmen forged their way into a new lifestyle; they started the year in fear, but soon adjusted to a bigger school, more friends, and a variety of classes. Sophomores finally got their eagerly awaited licenses and were now able to drive by themselves. Juniors, a cut away from the seniors, wrote their first research papers, took the PSAT's, and started checking out colleges.

Looking forward to their high school years to come, the underclassmen have started many new paths and have paved the way for those to come.

WHERE'S YOUR HOMEWORK?

My grandpa ate it. Jeff Sabbe

I had to take my little brother to the hospital last night. We were there past midnight.

Joe Sweazy

The Constitution guarantees me the rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Doing homework does not fall under any of these categories. Therefore, I choose not to do it.

Becky Priddy

My dad could not take me to school, so I had to fly in my hot air balloon. On my way, I flew over the city zoo which was on fire. I stopped and rescued some of the animals, but the weight of them in the balloon was too heavy to fly over the mountains. Instead of throwing an elephant overboard, I threw out my homework.

To Be Or Not To Be

Are you qualified to be a true junior? Take this quiz to find out.

1. How do you treat freshmen when you see them in the halls?

- A. Please excuse me.
- B. Move it!
- C. With respect - NOT!

2. How often do you brown nose a teacher?

- A. Every day during every hour.
- B. Only when my grade depends on it.
- C. I don't brown nose.

3. When do you study?

- A. The hour before the test.
- B. Two weeks before a test.
- C. Five minutes before the test.

4. How often do you get caught going out for lunch?

- A. The day after my closed lunch ends.
- B. Never; I don't go out.
- C. Once, and I'll never go out again.

POINTS!

- 1. A=0; B=10; C=5
- 2. A=0; B=5; C=10
- 3. A=5; B=0; C=10
- 4. A=10; B=0; C=5

35- 40 points: Congrats!

You are a true junior.

30-25 points: The potential is there, but you need to lighten up some.

20 or less points: You think you're a true junior, but you're still a freshman at heart. (That will teach you to think.)

Administration and Faculty

This year was a special year for MHS. For the first time in over 20 years, there was a Homecoming parade. The faculty and the student body came together to make this event possible. The parade included many different floats from school clubs, the MHS bands, and a section at the end of the line for students not in a club who wanted to march in the parade.

MHS welcomed a new principal, Mr. Joseph Trimboli, and lost a football coach, Mr. Al Smith. Five other new people were welcomed into the MHS faculty this year: Ms. Leslie Smith, a new English teacher; Mr. Ernst von-Rahl, who took Mr. Steve Clason's place as a math teacher; Ms. Laura Penner, business teacher, COE director, and the boys' swim team coach; and Ms. Akiko Goto, an exchange teacher from Japan who worked with Ms. Melissa Raffelock.

Instead of having full days off for teacher in-services, students were dismissed at 1:30 on six days. One of the things that took place at these in-services was the stating of six national goals. The first was that all children in America will start school ready to learn. The second was that the high school graduation rate will increase to 90%. The third was that American students will leave grades four, eight, and twelve having demonstrated competency in challenging subject matter including English, mathematics, science, history, and geography; and every school in America will ensure that all students learn to use their minds well so they may be prepared for responsible citizenship, further learning, and productive employment in our modern economy. The fourth was that U.S. students will be ranked first in the world in science and mathematics achievement. The fifth was that every adult American will be literate and will possess the knowledge and skills necessary to compete in a global economy and exercise the rights and responsibilities of citizenship. The sixth, and last, goal was that every school in America will be free of drugs and violence and will offer a disciplined environment conducive to learning.

To make a great year even better, a number of new student scholarships were set up this year. Two new ones were named after former teachers Herb DeCruise and Lilia Hymback. MHS alumni gave $10,000 to the scholarships to get them started and an additional $9,000 was added later in the year.

Mr. Trimboli said he would remember this year because of many things. "Everyday was a highlight because it was a new day. The staff and students really came together to pull off activities. I look forward to the class of '96 graduating because it is their first year of high school here and my first year as a principal here, and I look forward to the class of '93 graduating because they are the first class to graduate since I've been principal."

HEART OF STONE

Cavemen Show Off Their Pride

Athletes at Mishawaka may have had many differences between them, but they all did have one thing in common: team pride and spirit. Even though their seasons had their ups and downs, their spirit was always at a high. Lifting the teams' spirits even higher were the fans. "It was an incredible feeling when the fans packed the stadium. The support was just unbelievable," stated Nick Ortiz (93).

The teams held together through all kinds of challenges. It may have been the team attitude, an archrival, a long run, or just being a young team. Nikki Hibschman (93) said, "The volleyball team was definitely a TEAM. Working together got us through anything and anywhere we wanted to go."

The sports teams went from one extreme to another. Some had great success while others fell short of their dreams. Spirit was high, however, and the individual players performed with Hearts of Stone. Amy Hower

SHOUT IT OUT!

"There really was no big difference between poms and cheerleading," said cheerleader Stacy Grewe (93). "We were all there to support the teams and to show it to the fans."

It was in June that the two squads started to prepare for their important role. In the following month, they both went to Purdue for a week of competing and training at camp. "We placed first in the chant competition. It was exciting because this was what we had been striving to get for the past three years we've been on the squad," said cheerleader Amy Hower (93).

Poms won the highest award, the Sweepstakes Trophy, at their camp. Trisha Karnes (93) and Amanda Vellucci (95) both placed as All-Americans during the competition.

Something new about the poms was the splitting into Varsity and Junior Varsity. "It allowed the Varsity to become closer," said Lori Treat (93). "Varsity and Junior Varsity did different routines, but we're there for the same reason," said Becky Wolfe (93).

At pre-games, games, pep assemblies, and parades, the poms and cheerleaders could be seen showing their enthusiasm and support for the Cavemen.

In pouring rain, during chilling winds, and through falling snow, the spirit spreaders performed with pride. Football, basketball, and wrestling locker rooms were decorated by them, and it was the cheerleaders who held the hoop for the football players to run through at all home games.

Even though the cheerleaders and poms didn't play on any fields or courts, and they didn't win any games, they did keep the fans' and players' spirits up, even when the score was down.

"Sometimes we would be out on the field in our uniforms, waiting for the routine to begin, and just freezing. But once the routine started, we'd forget all about being cold until it was over. Then we'd start to freeze again." -Pom Captain Trisha Karnes

QUIT

The noise coming from thousands of dedicated fans in the stadium was incredible. The cold air made the night feel even more like football season was at hand. As the Cavemen ran onto their home turf, the crowd erupted in cheers and applause for their gallant warriors. But despite the enthusiasm in the air, neither the fans nor the players knew what an incredible game it would be.

Then the never-ending line of opponents walked in, slowly and with intimidation. The Cavemen fans showed no worry as the memories of last year's Valparaiso game came back to them. It was those same memories that made the Valparaiso Vikings even more determined to win.

As the first half flew by, the teams ran into their locker rooms with a half-time score of 14-14. Both teams returned to the field sure that they would be the first to score. The Vikings succeeded. But then the Cavemen's Nick Ortiz blasted through Valpo's defense to tie the score at 21.

The clock quickly ran down, and the two teams found themselves in an adrenaline filled game of overtime. Cory Betzer ran one yard to give the Cavemen the lead. The extra point failed, but the Cavemen didn't quit. As the Vikings began to attempt their ten yard assault with a pass, Cavemen defender Chad Harper stopped them cold in their tracks with an interception.

Coach Smith commented on his football players, "In May, June, and July when everyone was at the beaches, these guys were here practicing. They knew what they had to accomplish, and they were determined to see it happen. They were by far the hardest working group off season that we've ever had." Amy Hower and Chris Mannino

BLOOD, SWEAT AND TEARS

Practice makes perfect. No pain no gain. To us these may be old cliches, but one look at the sweaty, limit-pushed bodies of the girls' volleyball team showed that these worn out cliches were still true.

August 7th found the girls at their first day of practice. For two weeks the girls practiced three times a day for a total of seven to eight hours of practice each day. "Practices were very exhausting, but they were fun. We'd run stadiums and stairs, do aerobics, and endless pool jumps," said Nikki Hibschnan (93).

After school started, the girls practiced once a day for three or more hours. Game nights did not exempt the girls from practicing either. "If Coach thought that a game was won too easily, we would have to practice afterward. It got to be emotionally draining on all of us," commented Tara Wright (93).

Anyone who attended the fast paced volleyball games watched in disbelief as the MHS players got on the floor for sit-ups and push-ups between matches, while their opponents caught their breath.

What would cause these athletes to go through such immense physical and mental stress? Nikki Hibschnan (93) let us in on the secret. "It's really not so bad overall," she said. "We're all good friends; and though we had our moments, most of the time we really had a good time. We went out for pizza and stuff. It was a laugh a minute."

Whatever it was, the MHS volleyball team had something special, something that lead them to state year after year. Amy Hower and Chris Mannino

"During the second match against Riley we had a rain delay. Riley's ceiling started leaking and play was stopped for 30 minutes. We had to practice during the delay, but we came back and beat them. It may have been the first rain delay in indoor volleyball history." -Lynn Galasso (93)

FALLING INTO STRIDE

"It all started with the trip to the Indiana State Dunes. You really learned how to put up with people when you ran with them for three days. Everyone was moody and smelly, but we still ended up as really good friends," said Pam Kraegel (94).

The cross country team of M.H.S. was a close knit group of hard-working people. They began the season as friends and ended it as brothers and sisters. The unity of the team was something special that no loss or defeat could have destroyed.

"We all rooted for each other until the very end. No one of us was better than the other. We were a team and we performed that way," commented Cara Dregits (94).

"Morning practices were hard to get through, but we pushed each other, and we made it. Encouraging each other was easy because we all got along so well," explained Steve Hambling (93).

The coaches played an important role in the team's unity. "They encouraged us to work together. We learned to set team goals, not just personal goals," said Pam Kraegel (94).

The team all agreed that the week after their season ended was one of the most depressing weeks of their lives. The jokes and the laughter may be gone, but the friendships remained.

INTO THE DEEP

While the frigid outside air brought snow and sleet to the city of Mishawaka, the girls and guys swim teams were inside the warm waters of the MHS pool.

The Lady Cavemen started their season when the leaves were just starting to change colors and ended with snow on the ground. Captains Leslie Tomkiewicz (93) and Adrienne Egendoerfer (93) led the more experienced team that gave competition to some of the best.

Diver Susie Hambling (96) performed exceptionally well her first year on the team and was able to compete among the best during state finals at Indy.

Christy Rhodes (93) said, "Because of our morning practices, the team became a lot closer and made the season more memorable."

The guys swim team, however, did not have the experience that the Lady Cavemen had. With only three seniors on the team, the amphibious

Cavemen fought on throughout the season. "There were a lot of new swimmers, which was good," said Kevin Rulli (93), manager of the team, "but it made for a tough season with so few experienced swimmers and divers."

But the Cavemen struggled on like a battered battleship, and through the difficult season, they plotted new courses for more experienced teams to follow years to come.

NO LOVE LOST

"Love, deuce, break point! It's all in the game of tennis." With the boys playing in the fall, and the girls taking the courts in the spring, the Mishawaka Cavemen tennis teams trained long and hard for the sport they loved.

Although both teams were very young, the efforts they put forth allowed them to show that inexperience was an obstacle that Cavemen could overcome. And through the many practices and matches, many friendships developed. The very nature of tennis allowed for the teammates to become close. "Playing both singles and doubles, you were with the other teammates a lot and you got to know them and their style of play real well," said Carrie Koontz (94).

With young players on the girl's team, they were unsure of the positions they would play and the line up changed every week. This brought about a new challenge for the girls every week.

The challenges that faced both teams were ones that would overcome teams of less inner strength.

But both teams took the challenges head on and fared well in both singles and doubles. And with another year of added skill and gained experience behind their rackets, the Cavemen tennis teams were better prepared to handle the challenges that they would be forced to meet in years to come. Chris Mannino and Amy Hower

TAKING THEIR BEST SHOT

The Cavemen basketball team had a unique dedication to the game in their 1993 season. The team described their season as a roller coaster ride with wins they were not supposed to achieve, and losses that were hard to accept.

Practices were difficult and started long before the season began. "The hardest part was the six week period where we had all practices and no games to look forward to," said Ryan Watson (94). Practice often started at 3:15 on school days, with a list of activities to complete before that time. "Coach was really organized, and when one activity was over we knew we would be moving right on to something else," said Cory Betzer (93). But despite the intensity of the workouts, the team felt that they were less serious about their record this year than before and more concerned with just having a good time playing the sport they loved.

The team's attitude was reflected on the court. They defeated high ranked teams like Laporte, Memorial and Adams, and lost to less skilled teams like Marian and M.C. Elston.

To help give the team some determination, and to show his own dedication, Coach Adams made a deal with the team: Every away game the team won, he would walk home. "The St. Joe game was the first one where the deal was made," said Betzer, "but we got spanked that game." But the next two away games the Cavemen came out victorious, giving Coach Adams a walk home from both Adams and LaPorte.

The players of the Cavemen basketball team put much time and hard work into that season, and in turn they got a modest record and a lot of good memories. Chris Mannino and Amy Hower

That was the first time we saw him smile all season." -Cory Betzer (93)

COURT IN SESSION

Like most other Mishawaka athletic teams, the girls' basketball team posted a successful season. With their best record in the past six years, the Lady Cavemen paved a path for all basketball seasons to follow.

During the hot summer days the team could be found in pre-season conditioning, readying themselves for the struggle they knew was to come. As the green leaves of the trees faded to reds and browns and the geese headed south, the Lady Cavemen were in the gym putting in hours of practice to meet the oncoming season head on. And when the north winds blew in with their snow and ice, the girls basketball team was well prepared.

The season exploded into action as the girls defeated South Central in their first game. Throughout the season, though, the Lady Cavemen faced challenges that they were forced to deal with. "We all knew that playing Adams would be a challenge because they were ranked in the top ten," said

Samantha Poyer (95).

The Cavemen faced Adams during sectionals, and during a hard fought game they barely fell short of the so desired victory.

The loss was disappointing, but there was no shame, for the team lived up to Cavemen standards by fighting their hardest and giving their all. In the end they had a successful season to look back on.

NEVER SAY DIE

There is a point where it seems that someone just can't give any more, and then they are forced to reach deep within themselves and find just a little more to give.

The Mishawaka wrestlers did just that time and time again, proving themselves out on the mat. Every wrestler had that one match that they would never forget. For Vince Gresham (93) it was the match he had been waiting nine years for, the match that would make him state champion.

"It was hard not letting the pressure, all the lights, and people watching, affect my vision quest to be a state champ," said Gresham. If the intense pressure did affect him, it was only to push him harder and further. Gresham dominated his aggressive opponent from the beginning of the match. With a reversal and two takedowns, Gresham won his match 6-3, becoming state champion and achieving the most wins for a wrestler in Mishawaka history.

With all of the individuality that existed in a wrestling team, the ability to be able to fall back on fellow teammates was incredibly strong. "This year's wrestling team was the closest team ever," said Gregg Smith (93). It may have been an opinion, but it was one that the wrestlers all agreed with. The strength of team unity added to incredible skill made for a Caveman team that would make history. Chris Mannino, David Amacher, and Amy Hower

LIFE IN THE FAST LANE

"Sweat shows hard work; our results show commitment." This was the motto for both the boys' and girls' track teams this year. If you found yourself asking, "Sure, but did they live up to it?" The answer was simple: YES! Using both stamina and leadership, the two teams proved that their motto was more than 100% perfect.

Starting with hard training in February and then moving into even harder and longer practices, the individual runners found themselves becoming a team. All the members thought the teams' unity helped them improve their meet records where they displayed balance and depth. Kristie Baldini (93) stated, "Even though the guys' and girls' teams competed in different places, we were always pulling for them, and we knew that they were always pulling for us." Not only did the runners' love for the challenge and the fight for the win keep them going, but so did their teammates. "It was great to hear everyone standing along the track cheering us on. It really kept my sprits up," said Missy Belting (93).

As the season began to wind down, everyone tried to make sure that they reached one of their personal goals. After all, how could you show your commitment without results? A. Hower and C. Mannino

COVERING ALL BASES

It was 1920 when the first baseball team at Mishawaka High School was organized by Coach Mueller. Seventy-three years later it was still a recognized sport and going strong.

Car windshields still needed to be de-iced in the morning when the Cavemen baseball team began conditioning. From that time on, one of their biggest opponents was the weather. The cold and the rain either made games difficult or cancelled them all-together. The wind and sun also had a funny way of affecting plays. But like all other players before them had done for three quarters of a century, the Cavemen put up with the adverse conditions.

The stormy season that followed was one that the team had to ride out. "There wasn't any one thing that contributed to our losses or wins," said Joe Riffle (93). "It was always something different."

The Cavemen lost a close game against M.C. Elston despite a solo home run by Nathan Barcus (93). They also lost to Elkhart Central by one run.

Against Elkhart Memorial, however, they were able to overcome a close score with a RBI by Chad Cave (94) that broke a tie and put the Cavemen in the lead.

No game was a sure victory or a given loss: the outcomes were as unpredictable as the spring weather itself. "Each game we went into, we knew there was work to be done," said Cory Betzer (93).

What was certain was that the Cavemen baseball team was a part of a proud history of a sport that has been with Mishawaka for seventy-three years and is sure to be here for as many years to come.

DIAMONDS ARE A GIRL'S BEST FRIEND

Ranked among the top ten softball teams in the state of Indiana, the Mishawaka softball team knew their sport inside and out.

As in past years, the Cavemen softball team was made up of many talented athletes. Jenny Gradeless (93), pitcher for the team, pitched several shut-outs during the season and always threw many strike outs.

Many players of the team were experienced, and those who were not got the chance to start their softball careers playing with and learning from some of the best players in the state.

The difficulties that the Lady Cavemen did encounter were able to be conquered because of team unity. "We all played well together, and we were able to get things accomplished because we worked towards a common goal," said Amy Mestach (94).

And the cohesiveness of the team was seen out on the field and even on the bench. "We always cheered for the person who was up at bat and tried to give moral support," said Jenny Vining (95).

As the damp spring breezes gave way to the hot summer winds and the softball season came to an end, the Lady Cavemen were able to look back proudly at the season that they had played. The seniors congratulated each other on a successful four years, and the underclassmen prepared for more. Chris Mannino and Amy Hower

STARTING WITH A KICK

It was one thing to play for a team that made it to state year after year. It was another thing to play for a team that struggled to make it to sectionals. When you played for that kind of team, you weren't playing for glory, you were playing for the love of the sport.

With Matt Bellina returning as head coach of the soccer team, the Cavemen began the season with optimistic expectations. With eight seniors in the line-up, the team was more experienced and better prepared to take on the higher ranked teams.

But the demon of injuries and ineligibilities extracted its toll on the team. At least eight Cavemen were forced to miss games for these reasons.

But despite the absence of some key players, the Cavemen sought to fight on. And through the dark times, some bright talent was able to shine through.

Defenders Mike Morse (96) and Mike Zender (96) proved themselves on the field during their first year on the team.

When it looked as if defeat was near, it was the offender's important mission to strike back. Center-forwards Matt Anderson (93) and Byron Smith (96) were the lead scorers for the team.

And it would be hard to overexaggerate the skill and hard work needed to fill Mike Bultinck's (94) position as goaltender.

As the Cavemen took the field each game, there was always an uncertainty of how the game would end. But one thing always remained the same; the team would fight, no matter the score, for the extra goal until the final whistle blew. Chris Mannino and Amy Hower

OUT OF OF THE ROUGH

The golfer stepped onto the green with mixed emotions. Before him was the putt of his life. If he would sink the ball into the hole, he would be a hero; if not, his name would be forgotten in the world of high school golf.

With his hands wrapped firmly around the grips of his putter, he paused and studied the path he wished the ball to take. With a swift movement the ball was in motion. It wavered to the left, back to the right, then triumphantly fell into the hole.

It was a long winter for the golfers of the Mishawaka golf team. When spring finally rolled through, they couldn't wait to get back on the green where they felt at home.

For many, golf seems like it would make a relaxing hobby; however, the golfers took their sport seriously. "We practiced hard, and we still had fun with it," said Matt Evans (94). The Cavemen, coached by Mr. Gleissner, performed well on the courses. The team was made up of many juniors and underclassmen.

Said James Dryer (93), "The next few years the team will improve even more because of the experience it will have gained."

That experience was won as the Cavemen played and practiced on the golf courses of Indiana and Michigan.

Whenever the Cavemen golfers took to the greens and fairways, they were certain to have a common goal: to perform their best and have a good time doing it.

WE HAVE SPIRIT! Wearing maroon and white, Adrienne Egendoerfer (93), Debi Raab (93), Kim Feden (95), and Erika Burdette (95) show off their Cavemen spirit. Photo by Suzanne Siatkowski.

ONE MORE DAB Dawn Hearon (95) touches up Chris Wood's (95) make-up. Painting faces was a fun way students showed school spirit. Photo by Courtney Karnes.

What do you have to say on...

...changing the world: "Hurry!" Marc Bonadies (93)

...the environment: "Very sad!" Sean Lange (94)

...the biggest problem facing teens today: "Teenage pregnancy and AIDS." Angela Banghart (93)

...dating: "It is better than being tied down. Of course, I wouldn't know what it is like to be tied down. Oh, well." Carrie Koontz (94)

DOLLAR BILL Y'ALL! William Matute (94) is happy because now he has a dollar for lunch. Photo by Cindy Rush.

X-SQUEEZE ME? Carla Waumans (93) and ina Hensel (94) turn around to see who called it their names. The halls were always noisy during passing period. Photo by Jennifer Clark.

FROSH BUDDIES Sara Stephens (96), Jamie Rosenogle (96), Adam Sandefur (96), Chad Slates (96), and Chrissy Stevens (96) spend time with each other before going back to class from lunch. Lunch was a time to eat and a time to socialize with friends, to either catch up on the latest gossip or just to talk. Mostly, lunch was a time to relax from the hectic school day. Photo by Cindy Rush.

AVE A SEAT Justin Cookie (93) and Becky Priddy (94) chat in the cafeteria at lunch. The cafeteria was a popular place to talk with friends during lunch and before and after school. Photo by Suzanne Siatkowski.

HAT'S SO FUNNY? Laura Eley (95), Brooke Chodzinski (96), and Jennifer Martin (95) seem to be having a great time at a fire drill. Even though it was cold, it was a nice break to get out of class! Photo by Suzanne Siatkowski.

CUTTING CORNERS

Ad It All Together

Cavemen did a lot of business around town during the 1992-93 school year. Just take a moment to ponder the various restaurants, clothing stores, and other miscellaneous businesses that employed and benefited from high school students. These local businesses became a major aspect of the production of this book when they purchased advertisements to be pictured in our 1992-93 yearbook.

Not only were they supporting us, we were supporting them as well. For the amount of exposure that we gave these businesses to the public, they were getting a good deal. The yearbook will be around quite a bit longer than a commercial on television. What a deal!

The MHS Miskodeed staff wishes to express appreciation to all these businesses who have chosen to advertise in our yearbook. Our book wouldn't be the same without you.

Tender little memories of some word or deed give us strength and courage. When we are in need, blessed little memories help us bear the cross and soften all the bitterness of failure and loss. Precious little memories of little things we've done make the very darkest day a bright and happy one.

Brian, I came across this poem in a card it describes how I feel. I love you, and I am proud of you. I wish you the best.

cloaked in the disguise of a woman's body.
Turn your face and I see my grandma
my sister
my mother
myself,
a sum of your past
but in truth your own person a woman beautiful, loving a whole healthy self stepping forward to join hands in the circle of women.

Just what I wanted,
just what I hoped you would be.

CUT IN STONE

Stepping towards the end

Sometimes it seemed as if each high school year was the same as the others: unwanted homework, tests and quizzes; Friday night football games; good friends; and even daydreaming during classes. Yet each year held special memories for everyone. Maybe it was a touchdown in the last few seconds of a game, a new relationship, or finally getting your driver's license. In the end, we all decided for ourselves what the year meant. Though the days seemed long and the classes endless, we seeped in information and received lasting impressions and values. As we ended the 1992-93 school year, we drew on what we had learned and finished the year knowing that every precious memory had been Cut in Stone.

SENIOR STYLE

SIMPLY LAZING AROUND

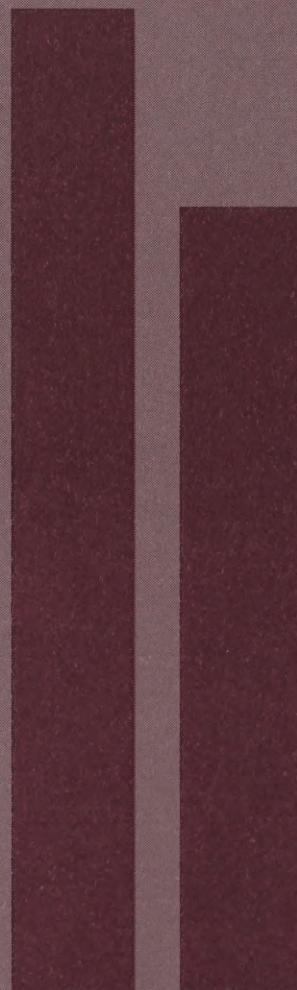

Miskodeed staff members pretend that working on the yearbook really doesn't take that much work. Those who decided to be on staff found out that producing the book takes a lot of time, work, and energy. In the end everyone's hard work paid off and produced an excellent 79th volume of the Miskodeed. Photo by S.S.

COLOPHON

Volume 79 of the Mishawaka High School yearbook was sponsored by the English and Journalism Department for one credit each semester. The class met one hour per day to meet this requirement.

The Miskodeed was supported through book and advertising sales and was sold as a package with the yearbook and the newspaper. The basic price was $22.00. If a student wished to have his or her name imprinted in gold on the front of their yearbook, a student paid $25.00 to $100.00.

Walwyn Publishing Company based in Maree Missouri, HS sales, lithographing the book. Valerie Tanke was a representative.

Photography studio based in Indianapolis, Indiana, was the official school photographer taking all senior portraits, group, and some candid photos. Other candid photos were taken by photo journalism students and developed by the students in the publications darkroom using Bessler cameras and Kodak chemicals. Color candids were processed by Photo Photo.

Macintosh II was used for typing senior life and sports sections, as well as the opening division pages. The Comtran II program was used for creating names and all captions and underclass, clubs and organization names and all body copy except those used throughout the book. Bookman, Zaph Chance, and Helvetica type styles were used. All marble graphics were produced with 30% black and 85% maroon 222 coloring.
